APPROACH

KEY ELEMENTS

Respectful attitude and cultural integration are main elements to succeed in our projects, which, once entered different communities and villages, produce different effects depending on cultural and social interest about them. To that reason, we develop integrated implementive strategies based on analysis of social equilibrium and transversal approach, optimising participation, understanding and project management, all resulting in short and long term effects for a sustainable development of the territory. Awareness, Knowledge and participation are therefore main features to succeed, and to that purpose we always set those as primary elements for preliminary training activity and creation of a sustainable approach.

HIERARCHY OF INTERVENTION

The choice of interventions is determined by analysis and investigation of places, needs and possibilities. The relationship between these three factors determines, in correspondence with the values expressed by CEBS, the hierarchy of one or more interventions, therefore their urgency and methods of implementation. No influence from outside Balouo Salo can jeopardize or influence the choice and operation of the projects and activities as Balouo Salo is impartial and neutral. The projects are first analyzed and subsequently developed following sociological, anthropological, architectural and other scientific investigations according to the type of project, and therefore they are based on concrete, indisputable and inviolable data from any individual opinion or idea, as well as political, religious, racial or gender.

NEED

The real needs of the beneficiaries are identified through scientific and objective analyzes and investigations free from influences or interests.

URGENCY

Priorities are assessed on the basis of emergencies of primary necessity, putting public health and safety first, economic and cultural development second.

OPPORTUNITY
